

CONGRESS TO ACT ON HOME FINANCING PLAN

PITT FACULTY MEMBER CALLED IN NEFF TRIAL

Dr. Andrew Wallhouser to Testify in Defense of Canfield Man

UNDERTAKER SAYS "IT WASN'T MURDER"

Defendant Scheduled To Take Witness Stand Friday Afternoon

Seeking to strengthen their contention that the shotgun which fatally wounded Mrs. C. H. Neff last October was held not more than a foot from her head, attorneys for Mrs. Neff's husband, on trial in Youngstown common pleas court on a first degree murder charge, this afternoon were to call Dr. Andrew Wallhouser, Pittsburgh pathologist, to the witness stand.

Dr. Wallhouser, a member of the University of Pittsburgh faculty, was to testify, according to Neff's counsel, that the pillow on which Mrs. Neff's head was resting when the gun was discharged, contained powder burns, indicating, according to the attorneys, that the weapon was within a foot of her when the fatal shot was fired.

Testifies For Neff

J. R. Williams, undertaker, first on the scene when Mrs. Neff was killed, testified today that he was "satisfied it wasn't murder."

Neff testified that the gun which he said he thought was unloaded, was discharged when he sought to arouse Mrs. Neff when she was asleep on a couch.

Williams said Coroner M. E. Hayes told him to save a cushion from the couch "because of the power marks on it." The state has contended the shot was fired from a distance, citing the alleged absence of powder marks.

Williams said Neff was so distraught he could scarcely talk. The undertaker testified Mrs. Neff's head was so badly mutilated that "powder marks could not be detected if there had been any."

Neff, prominent Canfield lumber and grain merchant, was scheduled to take the witness stand in his own behalf Friday afternoon. The defendant will be examined at length by both his own attorney, Clyde W. Osborne, and Prosecutor J. H. Lehighner.

22 Witnesses Testify

An early adjournment was taken Wednesday afternoon at the request of Attorney Osborne after 22 witnesses had testified.

MACON'S DEBUT IS POSTPONED; FIELD SOAKED

Take-Off, Scheduled At Dawn, Cancelled by Captain Dresel

AIRDOCK GROUND SOFTENED BY RAIN

Not Solid Enough to Support 130-Ton Mobile Mooring Mast

BULLETIN

(By Associated Press)
AKRON, O., April 13.—The first test flight of the U. S. S. Macon to determine whether the navy will accept her was definitely postponed at noon today by Lieutenant Commander Alger H. Dresel, after he had studied weather conditions.

The Macon's skipper reset the time for the maiden flight for 5:30 a. m. tomorrow, dependent on weather data available at 11 o'clock tonight.

It was explained that wind velocity was too high today to take the Macon out of her dock—the same dock in which the Akron, her ill-fated sister ship—was built.

Captain Dresel explained that the wind velocity must be very low before the Macon can be backed out of the dock.

AKRON, O., April 13.—The silver U. S. dirigible Macon—twin of the ill-fated Akron—rested lightly in her hangar for a maiden flight today but a rain-soaked field made a postponement of her air debut likely.

The take-off scheduled for dawn was canceled by Captain Alger H. Dresel. He announced after an inspection of the field and a study of weather maps at 8 a. m. that he would determine later in the day when the Macon's initiation to the air lanes would be attempted.

Field Too Soft
A heavy rain Tuesday drenched the field outside the airdock where the 785-foot Macon was built and it was doubtful if the ground would support the 130-ton mobile mooring mast to lead the zeppelin from the dock.

Clear skies and soft winds also are essential for the first trial flights, which include six runs for a total of about 84 hours to determine the $2,450,000 vessel's power, speed possibilities and probable fuel consumption.

80 Miles An Hour
The contract under which the Macon was built specified a maximum speed of at least 83 miles an hour and a cruising radius of approximately 10,000 miles without refueling.

A crew of seventy officers and men was assigned to make the initial flight together with Rear Admiral George C. Day, chief, and other members of the naval board.

16 CASES BEFORE MORTGAGE UNIT

Six Are Closed by County Farm Group; Others Under Consideration

The Columbiana County Farm and Home Protective committee appointed by Gov. White to give counsel and assistance in farm and home mortgage problems and in foreclosure cases considered 16 cases in the first three weeks of its operation.

Six of these cases have been closed while the others are still in process of adjustment. Most of the cases have not yet reached court but in two cases in which foreclosure proceedings had been filed, the extension was granted by the common pleas court upon the request of the committee. In one of these cases, action was delayed indefinitely.

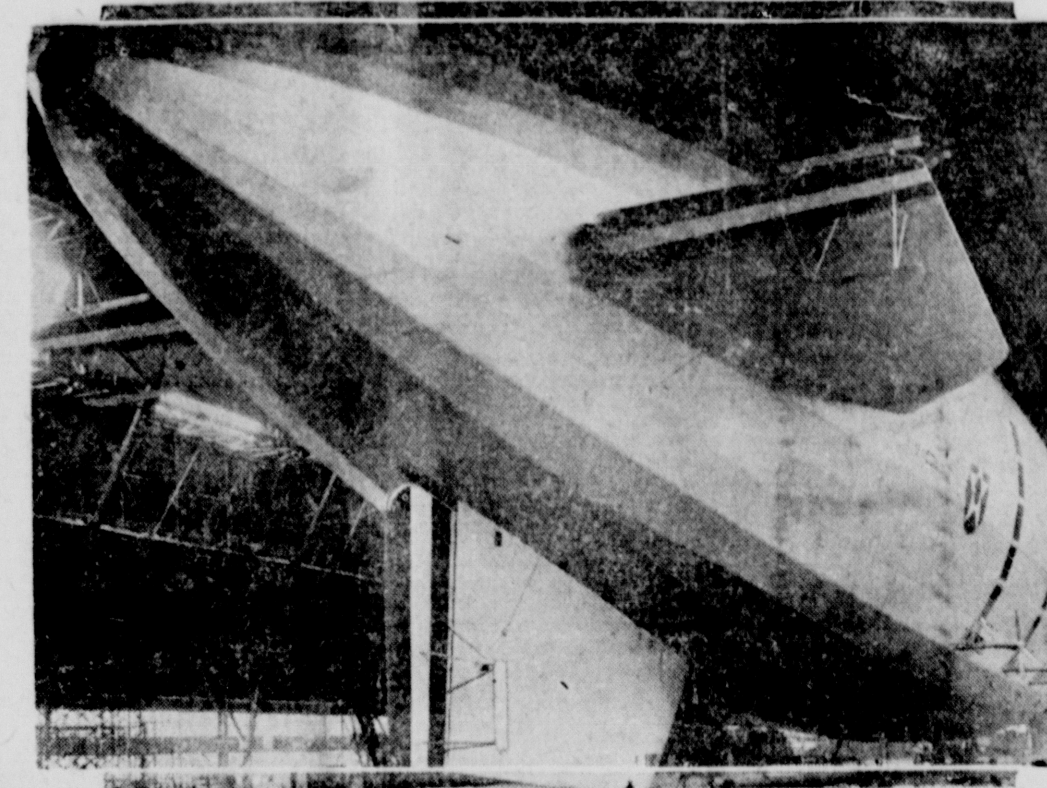

Judge W. F. Lones has ordered the committee to make investigation of cases which may come before it and has agreed upon an extension of time in foreclosure cases to give the committee time for complete investigation. The committee meets in court room No. 2 in Lisbon each Monday night. Members of the committee are W. H. Hepburn and Lodge Riddle, Lisbon; Ed. F. Stratton, Salem; C. W. Hendershot and J. J. Purinton, East Liverpool; W. Pottor, Salem township; L. W. Kirk, Fairfield township and H. J. Hagley, Madison township.

CHURCHES HOLD BIBLICAL PLAY

"St. Claudia" Is Presented To Capacity Audience At High School

A capacity audience witnessed the successful showing last evening of the religious drama, "St. Claudia," at the high school building. It was presented under the auspices of the Methodist, Episcopal, Presbyterian and Christian churches as a part of the pre-Easter spiritual campaign held for the last two weeks by these churches.

The play, which will be repeated at 8 this evening, was recently awarded first prize in a contest conducted by the Drama League of America in the field of religious drama. It depicts the lives of various Biblical characters, including Pontius Pilate, his wife, Claudia, Judas Iscariot, Sergius, Mary Magdalene and others.

Mrs. Ward Ekelstein, the director, was presented a beautiful corsage of roses by Rev. S. A. Mayer.

Between the acts an attractive musical program, arranged by J. W. Hunderlinck and Robert L. Wright, was given.

Important roles especially well portrayed were played by Attorney H. L. McCarthy, Claudia by Mrs. Floyd Stone, Sergius, Pilate's son, by Charles Wilhelm who also played the role of Judas, and Mary Magdalene by Mrs. George W. Bunn.

There will be no admission charge at the performance this evening but a silver offering to defray expenses will be taken.

Court of Appeals Has Brief Session

LISBON, April 13.—While only 10 cases were assigned for review by the court of appeals that met here Monday, a number of the issues were continued, and the court remained in session only one day, and only one entry was made in the appellate docket.

This was the case of Henry Holland against F. F. Davis, both of East Liverpool. Judgment of the lower court in this issue was reversed because of being contrary to law and the evidence, and a final judgment entered for the plaintiff in error.

British Engineer Pleads Guilty In Sabotage Hearing

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., April 13.—William H. MacDonald, British engineer who pleaded guilty yesterday to espionage, sabotage and bribery charges, produced a sensation today by testifying to a hostile court room that he made damaging confessions at the time of his arrest "because of the circumstances of the investigation" by the Russian secret police.

Five other British engineers and a dozen Russians, including a woman, are being tried on similar charges. MacDonald was the only one of the British group who pleaded guilty and the only one held without bail continuously since the arrests a month ago.

Another Russian co-defendant of six Britons was expected to testify today that he was a spy in their employ.

This witness, V. A. Sokoloff, was assistant director at the Zlatoust tins under Vassili Gusev, whose electrical station in the Ural mountains testified yesterday was partially confirmed by MacDonald.

All the defendants were employees of the Metropolitan-Vickers company of England, which has been engaged 10 years in installing and assembling electrical equipment in industries throughout the Soviet union. The other English defendants are Allan Monkhouse, Charles Nordwell, L. C. Thornton, N. W. Gregory and John Cushman. They all pleaded not guilty.

Suspects In Nobil Holdup Are Freed

An investigation of the holdup Monday morning of the Nobil Shoe store, East State st., was being continued today by Salem police following the release in Alliance late yesterday of two men held as suspects in the robbery.

The men, both of Alliance, were apprehended on suspicion charges when their descriptions were reported by police to have tallied with those provided of the two bandits by Clarence Livingston, manager of the shoe store.

Livingston visited the men in Alliance and reported to police that they were not the bandits who held him up and robbed him of $10. William Birmingham of Salem, who was in the store when the holdup occurred also exonerated the two suspects.

Boys Suspected In Lisbon Robberies

LISBON, April 13.—Police here are investigating robberies at the Beck restaurant and the Perkins grocery. Both, it is believed, were committed by boys ranging in age from nine to 12 years.

Food is said to have been taken from the restaurant and a wrist watch from a cash register. At the Perkins store, the boys entered through a rear window and helped themselves to confections. It is probable that a group of boys now under surveillance will be taken before Judge H. W. Hammond.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Creation of a permanent system of Federal Savings and Loan associations as well as an emergency $2,000,000 corporation to refinance home mortgages would be authorized under the bill recommended to congress today by President Roosevelt.

The bill would authorize subscription of $100,000,000 by the government for setting up a permanent system of Federal associations "to provide mutual thrift institutions in which people may place their savings and invest their funds, and in order to provide for the financing of homes."

Extend Battle On Power Rates

Leaders In Fight Claim To Have Enrolled 400 Consumers In Hubbard Township

WARREN, April 13.—A widespread attempt to win lower electric power rates for rural consumers was being organized today by Ross W. Baker, Trumbull county farm bureau manager, who claimed to have enrolled 400 consumers in Hubbard township.

He asserted the movement, when fully underway, will take in eight other townships, also served by the Ohio Edison Co. with offices at Youngstown.

Baker said the action, of a passive nature, would be designed to win a reduction to $1 of the $2 service charge. He said meetings would be held in Brookfield, Vernon, Johnston, Fowler, Vienna, Liberty and Lordstown townships to organize consumers.

Electric light users in two Trumbull county townships already have organized in an attempt to win lower rates from another company, the Windham Electric Co. Leaders say about 180 consumers have had their services discontinued in an effort to win lower rates, and the abolition of the $2 service charge.

The company, following circulation of the petition asking that lights be shut off, sent out statements for March electric service which it claimed were based on a rate schedule substantially below that which brought about the protest.

Lost Industry

SANTA MONICA, Cal., April 13.—Poor Chicago. The teachers are trying to get their salaries. The beer bootleggers claim they have been discriminated against, that America overnight has wiped out an industry. And right in the midst of all their troubles they are hit by a world's fair. But I believe they will come out of it. In years to come Chicago will be the biggest city in the world.

EASTER

The religious significance of Easter is always foremost, but underlying the Christian conception is consciousness of its symbolism as a festival of spring. It is fortunate that the glory of nature's resurrection makes so harmonious a background for the reverent anniversary of the Man of Galilee's resurrection.

It would tax understanding sorely to try to understand what may be individual conceptions of the meaning of Easter. Obviously, it is only an instrument of convenience which represents all people of one faith as holding the same ideas on so vast a subject as the true meaning of resurrection. There is room for many divergencies.

Might it be found, if it were possible or desirable to search the minds of one's neighbors, that in this season of the year men's thoughts turn instinctively to Easter as an occasion which provides emotional release for spontaneous gladness?

Another winter is ended and the coming of another summer is assured with the verdant growth of reawakened nature. This Easter surely is the occasion for special rejoicing, because its coming marks the end of a winter which had been feared for the suffering it might cause. With the departure of snow and cold, there is an inevitable lifting of spirit.

In this broad conception of resurrection or in the specific conception which will be retold in countless religious services this Easter-time, the skeptic meets a fact which turns back the sharp point of his inquiring doubt. He finds there a belief which dwarfs all misunderstanding and disagreement—a belief that man's welfare is in the kind hands of a power which is working tirelessly for his ultimate redemption.

OLD, FAMILIAR PLEASURES

Homeward-bound workers all the way from New York to St. Louis and points west indulged in an old, familiar pleasure last night when they stopped for baseball editions to see what had happened on the diamonds of the big leagues. In cities with major league ball clubs, paying customers were leaving the stands about the same time. They had heard the first sharp crack of hardwood bat on horsehide ball, had seen the first bullet throw to first and had heard the first sonorous "You're out!" Another season is in swing. Everybody's happy.

That is, everybody who wants to and can afford to enjoy the sport is happy. Unfortunately, there aren't so many as there once were. In some places it is to be heard that baseball is on the skids, that it is a declining pastime. The money required to pay the large salaries of capable players and to maintain the game on big league scales doesn't come easily enough any more. The new season is expected to be the turning point.

It is a situation which seems to place baseball in the category of things to be saved. Counsels of despair are not to be taken seriously, therefore. In all probability they won't be taken seriously when all the teams get into midsummer competition, but these are the doubtful days when baseball fever lingers in the moderate stage.

But if baseball's predicament calls for a campaign of salvation it is never too soon to start. What would life be without baseball? What would a July afternoon be without a chance to watch the pitchers and sluggers battle it out to the last second? Who is it that dares to talk about the decline of the oldest and most familiar pleasure in the whole field of sport?

It's easy enough to tell a real sheep from a stock-market lamb. The sheep still has its fleece—Dunbar's Weekly (Phoenix).

Dr. Andrew Wallhouser to Testify in Defense of Canfield Man

Osborne stated that he expected the arguments would start Monday or early Tuesday.

Neff's two daughters, Mrs. Mary Reebel and Mrs. Marjorie Whittle have remained at his side through every session.

Record crowds are still attending the trial and many persons are turned away daily because of lack of room.

Yesterday afternoon among the last of the witnesses to testify was Charles B. Harter, Canfield man, who worked for Neff last summer. He testified that he once found the fatal gun standing muzzle down in a corner of the sun room and that when he inspected it it was loaded. He said that he told Neff about the danger of keeping a gun that way and that thereafter he always found the gun right side up and unloaded.

New York

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, April 13.—With a detective I dined the other night in a restaurant in Chinatown patronized almost solely by Chinese. Upstairs is a lodging house. At un-clothed tables sat a collection of eight men. All expressed that vague air of a depot waiting room.

Not once during the stay was a word spoken save by the proprietor. He has been running the place nine years, trusting every one of his race without question. It may be years afterward, but the bill is always settled—if not by the debtor by a relative.

"Our people always pay honourable debts," he said in clipped sing-song, adding: "And we behead dishonest bankers". Around the dining room hung a rattle of dried fish and one of the specialties of the house is turkey tongue, served in a dry powder, and supposedly a remedy for lung ailments.

About Chinatown resorts is always the taut atmosphere of something stopped. I sat on the edge of a chair expecting curtains suddenly to part and a Fu Manchu to step out. Just one quick piercing scream and they would have to carry me out, feet up.

However, I picked up a dab of Chinese on the visit. One of the favorite au revoirs is "Kung hi!" That means: "I wish you joy!"

It is heartening to see how many New Yorkers who went upladder of life arrogantly are escaping into discreet poverty. Gene Cray, who and I came upon a fellow we used to know sinking up a side street. Once given to much side, he grinned: "I'm slipping back to the hall room. This is my weekly wash day."

In one of my hall room experiences in a West 57th street boarding house there was a hocked-watch hiatus when I was without a time-piece. But Nature seems to hold a palliative for every emergency. I discovered that at exactly 7:25 each morning in clear weather a thin streak of sunlight arrowed across the bed to awaken me. On murky days I slept on. But it didn't matter. I had no place in particular where I had to report.

It's astonishing what consolation there is in doing little things during periods of unemployment. In those days it was a custom to slit with a fingernail a package of cigarettes before going to bed so it would be in reach and ready upon awakening. After several months tedium I got so I would delay this slitting just because it gave me one more thing to do next day.

Swinging out of Park Row after Chinatown, I came upon old Five Points, once the battlefield of gangs. Now a public square and placid commune, it has none of the fierce bluster and chip-on-the-shoulder manner that used to entrance Grantland Rice and me on timid noon-day walks during Evening Mail days. Only the quaint old brick St. Andrew's church, where printers went to early mass, remains.

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York City

Building Foods, Essential
Many young women and some young men suffer from anemia. There is a less common ailment known as chlorosis. It is confined to young women. Sometimes this ailment is called the "green sickness."

This disease is indicated by a peculiar green color of the skin. The appetite is lost. There are languor, listlessness and decided unwillingness to indulge in exercise. There are likely to be frequent attacks of fainting.

Chlorosis is not confined to the hard-working city girl. Yet there can be no doubt that the conditions surrounding the country girl are not so likely to produce it. There is just one thing about the country that should be considered by all of us. Boards of health have not been so active in most rural communities for the past twenty-five years as they have been in cities. Consequently, it is probably true that open windows are less the rule in rural districts than in the city. Of course, until very recently, furnaces were unheard of in the country districts, and, to preserve the heat of the stove, there was a temptation to keep the windows closed.

Anemia Common in Cities
The frequency with which we meet anemia in the cities is a shame. Sit in a street car any day and observe the people who enter, especially the women. When they first arrive, and for a period of five or ten minutes, the cheeks are red. Unfortunately, however, as soon as the effect of the exertion of catching the car has worn off, the color fades away and the face is as white as wax, unless rouge has been applied.

There are tens of thousands of such persons in New York city, and they are to be found in every commercial or industrial community.

It speaks well for industry, however, that large employers of labor are now organizing and maintaining well-equipped welfare departments. Labor organizations have health and sanitation committees. Health authorities and state industrial commissions are aiding all these efforts. Intelligent welfare legislation is being employed. All in all, the prospects seem bright for the removal of many factors that have militated against health.

Anemia and chlorosis will be less common in the future. They are the penalties of wrong eating, wrong habits and personal neglect. It is important that every young woman, and everybody else for that matter, should select those foods that carry iron, copper and other minerals of value to health. Unless we eat right, and treat our bodies properly we are sure to have trouble.

THE CHALLENGE OF LOVE

by WARWICK DEEPING

SYNOPSIS

Young Dr. John Wolfe arrives at the quaint town of Little Navestock to become Dr. Montague Threadgold's assistant. Though shabby of dress, the young doctor's bearing commands respect. Dr. Threadgold is very affable but his wife, who judges from outward appearances, considers Wolfe a "raw hawk of a man" and treats him coolly. Sir George Griggs arrives with a dislocated shoulder. He is infuriated over Dr. Threadgold's clumsy treatment and turns to young Wolfe who skillfully sets the shoulder. Later, Dr. Threadgold tells his wife that Wolfe has some ability but is a little forward. Dr. Threadgold attends the prosperous patients and assigns his assistant to the poor section of town. The young physician realizes the pitiable plight of these people in hands of a bungling doctor. He is shocked at the unsanitary conditions in the alleys and starts an investigation. Dr. Threadgold, ignorant of this, is well satisfied with his assistant, and Mrs. Threadgold now considers him a very passable person. In Threadgold's absence, Wolfe goes to attend a Mrs. Mascal. He is met by the young daughter who is displeased that he and not the old doctor responded. Wolfe's frankness, however, wins her over.

CHAPTER TEN

She looked him in the eyes, and her frank glance said: "I like you." Wolfe watched her go running up the oak stairs, her short green skirt dancing about her slim black ankles.

She had left him in a great stone-paved hall, a dim place, full of queer perfumes, old furniture, and old prints. A blunder-buss hung by a strap from a nail. In one corner stood a huge oak cupboard, its scutcheon plates and hinges bright as silver. A stone-paved passage disappeared under a heavy green curtain. Oak doors opened here and there. A red clock and a whip lay tossed upon a round, pedestal table with claw feet.

The girl came back for Wolfe, and her face looked a little anxious. "Please come up. Mother seems very ill. She can hardly get her breath—though she never will make a fuss."

Wolfe climbed the stairs, looking up into the girl's face. It was a face that had none of the beauty of regularity. The chin was a trifle too strong, the mouth too large, the cheeks not sufficiently rounded. But like many irregular faces it had the fascination of its irregularities, its characteristic and provoking flashes of expression that leaped out with the swiftness of sunlight from behind a cloud.

Wolfe felt the lure of the child's free, flashing spirit. Her perfect health seemed to live in the black masses of her hair.

"I hope I shall soon put things right. Are you Miss Mascal?"

"Yes, I'm Jess."

"Just Jess—as father used to say."

"Was that because you were naughty?"

"I won't say that it wasn't!"

In one of the big south bedrooms Wolfe found a rosy, middle-aged woman in the thick of a bad attack of asthma. She was propped up in a four-post bedstead, her handsome and good-tempered face suffused and anxious, her black hair braided under a neat muslin cap. She smiled at Wolfe through the labour of her breathing, and nodded Jess out of the room.

"It's good of you to come so soon, doctor. I do hate making a bother."

"We live—by being bothered."

"Well, that's honest, isn't it? Sit down, doctor. I haven't had an attack like this for years. I used to hang on to the mantel-piece, or anything I could get hold of. The fact is—"

"Don't talk if it bothers you."

"I'm a terrible talker, you know, doctor."

She looked it, with her round, handsome, lovable face, her generous, voluble mouth, and her motherly hands. Mary was her name, and a Mary she was.

"You know, doctor, my kitchen girl and I cleaned out the old lumber-room. It must have been the dust that did it."

"No doubt. Now, don't worry yourself for a moment."

Wolfe made his examination, and then sat down on a chair beside the bed.

"I think we can soon make you easy, Has Dr. Threadgold ever given you medicine for this?"

"Not for years, sir."

"You are careful about your food?"

Mrs. Mascal looked guiltily cheerful.

"I'm afraid I'm a regular girl doctor. When something good comes—"

"I know. You are too—happy."

"Now, that's just the word. I never worry about anything. And I never feel like being ill. But I do hate giving trouble."

"Nonsense. It's a pleasure to take care of happy people. Now, I'll ride back at once and make you up some physic. Can you send anyone over?"

"Bob can go on the pony."

"Good. Keep to light food, and have the windows open. I'll ride off at once."

Mrs. Mascal gave him a grateful hand.

"You've made me feel better. I do dislike your undertaker sort of man."

"So do I. Shall I send your daughter up?"

"Yes, please do."

Jess Mascal was waiting in the hall. Her brown eyes were anxious, but very friendly. Wolfe reassured her.

"We will soon put your mother at ease."

"Then it's not dangerous?"

"No. Bob, the boy, is to ride over at once for medicine. I am going straight back to Navestock. Your mother would like you in her room."

Jess followed him to the porch.

"I was a silly," she said, as he turned to give her a lift of the hat.

"I think you were very sensible."

"Oh, what a word!"

"Don't you approve of it?"

She laughed.

"Then I'll leave it alone. Supposing we say—wise?"

She looked at him, smilingly thoughtful.

"If you like."

Wolfe went down the stone-paved path with a sense of the freshness of spring in the air. His moods for the last few weeks had been intense and grimly practical, and he had been too much with people who needed lifting up out of the mire.

Navestock had saddened him, even though it had gripped his intellect. He had felt rather lonely on the road that afternoon, but these people at Moor Farm had touched and warmed his heart.

Wolfe had been nearly three months in Navestock, and his map of the town had grown into a gaily coloured patch-work, with the River Wrath running through it as a silver streak, and the outlying meadows and gardens coloured a vivid green. A box of crayons had served to give breadth of expression to his researches. Red was his colour of utter condemnation. Brown stood for strong censure; yellow for milder offences; blue for the neighbourhoods that were comparatively healthy. A mere glance at this colour plan showed red extending over all the low lying ground about the river. Streaks of red spread themselves like veins over the whole town. Brown predominated in the crowded streets about Turrell's brewery. The market square, some of the main streets, and the more aristocratic residential quarters were coloured yellow. The only blue areas were Mulberry Green, High Elms and old Josiah Crabbe's quarter of Peachy Hill.

On the map were little symbolic signs drawn with a fine pen. A circle denoted a polluted well; a deep black line, a foul ditch or open sewer; a cross, an insanitary backyard; a square, an accumulation of rubbish. Facts had crowded it upon Wolfe. It was as though they had been waiting for years for someone to notice them, and sprang at the first man who did not wish to have them ignored. Yet Wolfe lost no opportunities. There were few places in the poorer parts of the town into which his work did not take him, and he toiled through a dozen of old Threadgold's day-books and death-registers, sifting and grouping statistics. The better-class quarters were beyond him in some measure, but he was content to conclude that they were not of great importance. His researches were concentrated upon the low-lying quarters by the river, upon Peachy Hill, because of the contrasts it appeared to offer; and upon the crowded streets about Jasper Turrell's brewery.

A large part of the town was a mere mass of pollution, sodden with sewage, and heaped up with refuse. There was no system. Everything had been done haphazard. Such drains as existed delivered themselves into the river. The town was pitted with closed and unventilated cesspools, and strewed with no more than the people were ignorant, degenerate, and abominably dirty.

With the exception of the better quarters, such as Mulberry Green and High Elms, the drinking water was obtained from surface wells and the river. So far, Wolfe had been unable to find a surface well that contained good water. They were polluted with sewage that leaked from the cesspools and with the washings by rain of the foul yards and courts. The river water was drunk by scores of families.

Most of the cottage property was in a state of disrepair, and the alleys and lanes were damp and dirty. Nothing whatever appeared to have been done to evolve some system of scavenging. Many of the back gardens and yards were mere refuse heaps. Slops were thrown out into the lanes or on to the ground outside the back doors.

The general mortality in the town appeared to be very high. Consumption scoured the damp, low-lying quarters by the river. Many diseases that arose out of unsanitary surroundings were endemic. The infant mortality was no worse than in other towns, nor had rheumatism crippled the people as much as Wolfe would have expected. It seemed certain that most of the common diseases of everyday life were both more prevalent and more disastrous in their effects in the case of a "filth disease" getting a foothold in the town. Its ravages were likely to be catastrophic.

ROOSEVELT'S IDEA
ENGLAND AND RUSSIA
BALKS AT HANGING

—By Arthur Brisbane—
(Copyright, 1933 By King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT suggests:

"Abolish all unnecessary, artificial barriers and restrictions which now hamper the healthy flow of trade between the peoples of the American republics."

This would mean doing away with tariffs, from Terra Del Fuego, north through South America, central Africa, Central America and Mexico, up to Canada's border.

Canada, not a republic, but part of another national group, is not included now. Later Canada might come in from the north to the south poles on both American continents. That, in the language of Amos and Andy, would be "sumpin'" for Europe, Asia and Africa to think about.

OF SIX ENGLISHMEN accused of sabotage and spying in Russia, one, W. L. MacDonald, employee of the Metropolitan-Vickers Electrical Corporation, pleads guilty. Eleven Russian employees also plead guilty. Englishmen plead not guilty. England believes that the Englishman pleading guilty was driven to it by "third degree" methods, including cross-examination, without rest for 21 hours.

The House of Lords has passed a bill giving government authority to end all trade with Russia, and the authority may be used, depending on the result of the trial. Wars have come from less cause.

WINNIE RUTH JUDD, sentenced to be hanged in Arizona, tried to commit suicide and was thwarted.

Mrs. Judd says she will kill herself before they can hang her, because "I have my teeth. They can't take them away from me." She threatens to bite a hole in the big artery of her wrist and bleed to death. That would call for determination, but it is not impossible.

A nihilist prisoner under the czars, knowing that he would be tortured to make him reveal names of accomplices, seized the bars of a small window high up in his cell, pulled himself up and held his body above the flame of a small oil lamp until he had burned a hole in his abdomen and killed himself. He was afraid torture might make him betray his comrades. That called for determination.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS statement that Hitler now turns his attention to "whipping Germany's universities into line" will interest intelligent Germans, who know what they owe to their universities.

That debt includes chemists, physicists and industrialists that have created Germany's prosperity.

Germany owes to her universities the philosophers and writers that have created Germany's glory. If all this is "whipped into line," and compelled to think within the limits of Mr. Hitler's thinking, the whipping will not contribute to German glory or prosperity.

HITLER proceeds along Mussolini lines, taking control of "big business" and labor unions. He agrees with George Bernard Shaw that capitalism as a world power is dying. Shaw says it will soon collapse. Hitler means to make it collapse. They may both be surprised. Capitalism has died that kind of death before. The French revolution was to do away with capitalism, and now, with Mirabeau, Danton, Robespierre and Marat in their graves more than 100 years, France is among the greatest, capitalist countries on earth. You can't kill capitalism until you find something to take its place, more intelligent and efficient, and it must be something that gratifies men's selfishness.

THE INVENTOR of the electric chair, Dr. Alphonse David Rockwell, is dead, 92 years of age. He meant well, and his invention works well. But it did not add to the dignity of science to substitute the electric current for the hangman, the headman with his ax, or the efficient guillotine.

Doctor's Advice On PILES
Internal Treatment Best and Guaranteed—He Says

When Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, who has given many years of his life to the study of the treatment of piles, says and has proved that the right, and best way to gain freedom from this agonizing trouble is to take one Hem-Roid tablet three times a day—why go on dallying with salves, ointments and suppositories?

Remove the cause and your piles will vanish no matter how severe they are or what name you give to them.

And that is why the makers of Hem-Roid authorize J. H. Lease Drug Co. and all modern druggists to say to sufferers—take the contents of one bottle of Hem-Roid and then if your piles have not gone or haven't started to disappear—get your money back—you'll be joyfully satisfied with the quick action of this efficient formula.

Dayton Man Admits Shooting to Police

DAYTON, April 13. — A trail of crime, including two killings, was traced today by police who said Frank Vacciano, 27, had confessed the slaying of Sam Valentine, 24, of Dayton, eleven months ago.

Toledo detectives sought to connect Vacciano with his companion, Jack Renaldo, with the killing there on March 29 of John J. McLaughlin, 38, night clerk in a fashionable apartment hotel.

Richmond, Ind. police, who captured the pair in a pistol battle Monday night, said they believed the fingerprints of the men tallied with those of the two suspected of the Toledo clerk's slaying.

(By Associated Press)

The grand pageant of baseball has begun its six-month parade through America attended by crowds only slightly smaller than those of a year ago and with a lot of very unpleasant weather to account for the decrease.

Fine Hurling Features Day
Nearly 100,000 fans, including the President of the United States, saw the five major league games yesterday and the displays of fine pitching that went with them. Although the total was some 20,000 lower than the 1932 opening-day attendance, there was no defection on the part of fandom. Rainy, cold weather, winding up in a freak April snowstorm, forced the postponement of three games along the eastern seaboard.

Opening day is still to come in New York where 40,000 or more are expected to see the world champion Yankees open their new season against the Boston Red Sox; in Boston, where the Braves face the New York Giants and in Philadelphia, where the aspiring Phillies tackle the equally hopeful Brooklyn Dodgers. With clearing weather predicted, all three delayed openings were due today.

Senators Upset A's
President Roosevelt, assuming his new role as the nation's first fan, was one of the 24,000 who saw the Washington Senators upset the American League supremacy of the Yankees by setting down a makeshift team of Philadelphia Athletics 4 to 1.

Vice President Garner led the parade to the flag pole then the President officially opened the season with a wild pitch as he tossed out the first ball.

Two four-hit pitching performances, a five-hit job, and one brilliant 13-inning mound duel turned up in the western sectors of the two major leagues.

Tribe Defeats Tigers
Only 19,000, fewer than expected, were on hand at Detroit where Clint Brown and Tommy Bridges battled on the hill for four extra innings before an error turned the tide and gave the Cleveland Indians a 4 to 1 triumph.

Bridges gave Cleveland only four hits in 12 frames, but in the 13th frame, Walker dropped Cissell's fly, and after two were out and two on base the Tiger hurler croaked and allowed three straight hits for as many runs.

Lonnie Warneke was one of the four-hit moundsmen as he started the Cubs along the right road toward their second championship by shutting out the Cardinals 3 to 0.

Pittsburgh's Pirates, considered the Cubs' most serious threat, got the benefit of the five-hit twirling job by Bill Swift and defeated the Cincinnati Reds 4 to 1.

Eddie Durhan, ex-Bostonian, and Joe Heving, up from Indianapolis, combined for the second four-hit game, and with the aid of Red Kress and Al Simmons gave the Chicago White Sox a 4 to 2 victory over the St. Louis Browns. The day's smallest crowd, 4,600, saw this game.

Simmons, who came to the Sox from the Athletics in one of the many winter trades, closed the first home run of the season in the fourth inning.

Joe Cronin, Senators—Made debut as manager by hitting three times in four times up against Athletics.

Lon Warneke, Cubs—Shut out Cardinals with four hits and fanned six to win 3-0.

Clint Brown, Indians—Held Tigers to seven hits in 13-inning duel with Tommy Bridges, winning 4-1.

Gus Suhr, Pirates—Hit two doubles and one single behind Bill Swift's four-hit pitching to help beat Reds 4-1.

Al Simmons and Red Kress, White Sox—Simmons hit first home run of season; Kress batted in three runs in 4-2 triumph over Browns.

Fight Results
SAN FRANCISCO—Al Cirino, San Francisco, won over Little Dempsey, Philippine Islands, by a foul, (3); Milho Millett, Omaha, Neb., outpointed Claude Capley, Sausalito, Cal., (6).

KANSAS CITY—Johnny Owens, Kansas City, outpointed "Cowboy" Eddie Anderson, Casper, Wyo., (12).

Highlights of Cleveland Victory

After battling on even terms for 12 innings, the Cleveland Indians tallied three runs in the thirteenth to defeat Detroit Tigers, 4-1. Photos show, above, Earl Averill, Indian outfielder, safe at first after making the first hit and, bottom, Ray Hayworth, Detroit catcher, scoring the first run.

KAMM'S SINGLE BRINGS VICTORY IN 13TH FRAME

Cleveland Hurler Gains Triumph In Duel With Tom Bridges

Cleveland Indians looked like a great ball team Wednesday as they inaugurated their 1933 American league pennant campaign with a 4-1 triumph over Detroit Tigers in a sensational 13-inning battle on the Detroiters' home diamond.

Brown Hurls Victory
Mound performances of Clint Brown of Cleveland and Tom Bridges of the Tigers were the big features of the battle, played before a small audience of not more than 20,000 spectators. A single by Willie Kamm, scoring Chalmers Cissell, provided the winning marker in the thirteenth.

Kamm's hit came after two were out and started subsequent fireworks with Roy Spencer and Brown each smacking out safeties and before the side was retired the tribe had lotted up its first victory of the year.

In the first eleven innings the Indians made exactly two hits, the Tigers made six. The Tigers scored an undesired run in the third when Bill Knickerbocker lost Hayworth's pop fly in the wind and it fell for a double and Cissell neglected to cover first base on Bridges' bunt. That bunt, which went for a hit, sent Hayworth to third and he registered on Owen's infield out.

Indians Tie It Up
The Indians tied it up in the sixth when Knickerbocker atoned for his earlier slip by starting the inning with the Indians' first hit—a clean single to center—and Earl Averill followed with a whistling double to the bleachers in right center. This hies put Knick on third and he came in when Morgan sent a fly to Stone.

From that point on it was tough. Bridges had been wild in the early innings and his support had been wobbly, but from the sixth inning through the twelfth he issued only one base on balls and the Tigers played brilliantly in the field.

In the entire game the Indians faltered only once—that once in the third. From there to the finish they played perfect baseball—some of it the hair-raising kind.

Pitchers in Command as Association Race Opens

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, April 13.—Thomas Jefferson Hickey's big American association baseball derby is off with the pitchers in command of the hitters and the west and east all square in the opening engagements.

As the weather relented, all eight teams struggled to decide battles yesterday. Columbus, Toledo, Milwaukee, and Kansas City emerging victorious in unusually close battles.

Strideaway Certain To Start In Derby

(By Associated Press)

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 13.—Rail-birds at Churchill Downs gathered today to take a look at Strideaway, the Kentucky derby nominee of the three D's stables of Texas and the far west's leading contender for the $50,000 added stake May 6, a new arrival.

Barring accident, Strideaway is considered a certain starter in the derby if the track is fast that day.

The three D's stable was the "hard luck" racing establishment last year. Its liberty limited burnt and the track in workout and loomed as the standout dark horse but broke down during the running of the derby.

C. C. Van Meter's Red Whisk, a leading derby hope of the blue grass, came out of a race at Lexington in which he finished second with a quarter crack. His handlers say it will not interfere seriously with the colt's training.

Col. E. R. Bradley, only turfman to win three derbies, has returned to his Idle Hour farm near Lexington and is highly pleased with the condition of three of his derby eligibles—Boilermaker, Broker's Tip and Fingal.

J. C. Milam's Captain Red, whose victory Monday made him the first derby eligible to win a race in Kentucky, was the only derby nominee on today's card at Lexington.

Muddy tracks slowed up workouts at Louisville and Lexington yesterday. Mile workouts of derby eligibles included North Mill 1:49 7-5, at Louisville and Pre War, 1:51 2-5, Ben Minburn 1:53 and Graceful Lad, 1:46, at Lexington.

Beer Sales Good At Opening Tilt

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, April 13.—Beer went well at the 1933 baseball inaugural at Wrigley field.

Concessionaire John Seys said the Wrigley field bar, under the grandstand, did a rushing business despite the chilly spring weather. All sales were draught beer.

No sales of the new beer were made in the grandstand but may be later—in paper cups.

Billy Burns Meets Flash at Alliance

ALLIANCE, April 13.—The only welterweight to beat Tax Tuka at Canton, since the Michigan star located there last fall, will be in the semi-final of the Don Gonzalez-Young Hodge fight tomorrow night at the Barnes auditorium when the Alliance Athletic club runs the fourth of its series of shows there. He is Billy Burns of Cleveland.

Burns whipped Tuka in a 10-rounder at Canton. Tomorrow night he will tangle with Tony Flash of Euclid and is favored to win, although Flash is rugged and ambitious himself.

Gonzalez decisively beat Henry Scarpuzzi last week, but Hodge jumped at the chance of upsetting him, according to Matchmaker Ed Brooks.

Mansfield Relays Attract 60 Teams

MANSFIELD, April 13.—The annual Mansfield relays will begin Saturday and continue through April 22, and more than 1,000 athletes from some 60 high schools of the state are expected to compete. A 50-man team has been entered by Cleveland East Tech, winner of the 1932 carnival.

Dick Porter's Freak Hitting Style

INTRODUCING THE INDIANS

No Handicap To His Fine Abilities

Dick Porter is known as the Gilda Gray of the national pastime. He can snake his shoulders and wiggle his hips in a manner unknown to even the "Shimmy Queen." Whenever the Indians play in New York and Gilda is in the metropolis she doesn't miss a game looking for something new from Dick for her act. There is a race fast balls when they are past him, and slow balls before they get to him. Started for six years in the minors, but his batting style was so unorthodox that no big league club figured him a good gamble. Billy Evans took a long chance on him and Porter has justified his judgment since joining the Indians.

Porter uses the lightest bat of any player in the majors. Most of his bats weigh 33 ounces, some are as light as 31. His peculiar style in which he wiggles the bat like a toothpick calls for a light stick. He even wiggles his hips when running after a fly ball. He gives you the impression that he is staggering and just about to stumble, but covers a world of ground. Is a sure catch when he gets his hands on the ball. Doesn't like a sun field but is forced to play one in the new Cleveland Stadium. Is the most confident player on the Indians and a big favorite with the crowd. Keeps up a constant chatter from his position in right field. Is a big sausage man during the winter, having an interest in a business that turns out hot dogs as well as other thin skinned delicacies. And yet he has never threatened to quit baseball for the profits in sausage skins. Lives in Maryland, says it is the greatest state in the Union. Positive Governor Ritchie is the nation's smartest politician and should have been elected president. Porter will be in right field when the Indians meet the Tigers at the Stadium April 19th.

Sprinz Signs
COLUMBUS, April 13.—Joe Sprinz, holdout catcher, has signed his contract with Columbus of the American association.

horses named Dick Porter, but Dick doesn't brag about it. He is usually in the also-ran class. Porter is the smart guy of the Indians. Likes to see the ponies run, but merely looks them over, never makes a bet. Porter has a style at the bat that is all his own. It is unique and original, if nothing else. He hits

Joan Blondell in New Film; Comedy-Drama Runs Today

THAT grand little trouper of the screen—Joan Blondell—is the star of the coming feature at the State theater—"Broadway Bad." The attraction will play Friday and Saturday.

Here is an intriguing human interest story interpreted by a cast of finished performers who give that all important stamp of reality to their work. Besides Miss Blondell, there are Ginger Rogers who always gives a good performance, Ricardo Cortez as the leading man, Adrienne Ames, fast becoming one of the most popular of screen sirens, Allen Vincent, Ronnie Cosbey and Victor Jory, seen in "State Fair."

Miss Blondell Is Good
Previously cast as a happy-go-lucky girl with a lot of wise cracking philosophy, Miss Blondell is introduced in this picture as a dramatic actress. However, that doesn't mean we movie-goers are to be cheated of her laughing and joyful nature altogether for she is all of her old adorable self with some new dramatic ability added.

There are gay music, sparkling dialogue and lovely girls in this story of the little chorus girl who climbs to fame and fights so hard to keep her happiness. She finds that the peak of fame is not all roses and that happiness is ever so hard to find.

A comedy-drama just chuck full of thrills and comedy, with a cast that is headed by one of London's and New York's funniest stars and one of the best of the screen's comedienne—that is the bill for today only at the State.

Truex and Merkel Star
The picture is that laugh-provoking film, "Whistling in the Dark" and the stars are Ernest Truex and Una Merkel—that little lassie with the southern accent and funny giggle.

The fun revolves around the attempt of Truex, as an author of murder story novels, and Miss Merkel, his fiancée, to plan a "perfect crime" for a band of crooks who threaten them with death if they fail. That sounds rather terrible but there are so many laughs you don't even think of the serious side of it.

Novelist vs. Crooks
Against the half dozen desperate thugs who hold the pair captive in a big deserted house the diminutive Truex pits his novelist's wit and succeeds in turning the tables on the band of crooks.

For eleven months Truex starred in this same role in the stage production and the skill of his droll performance of "Wallace Porter" on the screen gives evidence that we are most apt to see him again.

Others in the cast are Johnny Hines, John Miljan, Edward Arnold, C. Henry Gordon and Joseph Cawthorn.

Rev. Choice Speaks At Service Tonight

Rev. G. D. Choice will discuss the subject, "Wonderful Words of Life" in his address during another of the series of pre-Easter services at the St. John's A. M. E. church tonight. Speaking on the subject, "Provision of the Cross," Rev. Choice issued an appeal to "be prepared to face death with Jesus." He said, in part:

"Provision is seeing that which has not yet appeared, having visions of things to come. People once, living close to God, were able to foresee events; they served God and were given that provision."

"Jesus was told not to go to Jerusalem. So are we often persuaded to take another road but there are no crossroads. Think of the great host that started and have turned back."

"Start with Him tonight for every person must face death. How are you going to face death, alone or with Jesus? Don't you want that provision. Journey with Him towards Jerusalem tonight."

Rev. Choice will speak on "The Last Bitterness of the Cup" on Friday night.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blotches. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes three good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.
